From the New York World. That is a queer story about Grant and the Cabinet refusing to pay fare on the Hudson River Railway when en route to General Thomas's funeral, and, but that it is so very circumstantial, might be taken as a hoax. The statement is that, having vainly endeavored to get his fare, the conductor proceeded to uncouple the Presidential car at Poughkeepsie, and would have left it on the track had not some higher official of the road taken the responsibility of ordering its freight of "dead heads" forward. Perhaps, as it appears the party left New York at midnight, they were, like the men in the pirate song, "all very merry," and so far above the baseness of the slave who pays; but, be this as it may, the incident would be justly nation once whipped up his bobtailed gray in Philadelphia and went tearing down the street with a swarm of policemen, fast driving, at his tail.
